Spectacular Seychelles
Eden on earth
Seychelles: At a Glance

- The granitic islands of the Seychelles archipelago cluster around the main island of Mahé, which is home to the international airport, the capital Victoria, as well as its stunning satellites Praslin and La Digue.
- Together, these inner islands form the cultural and economic hub of the nation and Seychelles’ common facilities and play host to many of its most stunning beaches.
- There are three official languages in Seychelles: Creole (a blending, French-based dialect), English and French. Many Seychellois also speak Italian or German.
- Seychelles’ enviable climate is always warm and without extremes. Temperatures seldom drop below 24°C or rise above 32°C.
- All but the most remote southern islands lie comfortably outside the cyclone belt, making Seychelles a year-round destination for sun worshippers.

Getting there

Air Seychelles, Qatar Airways, Kenya Airways, Condor, Air Austral and Emirates Airlines offer frequent flights to and from Europe, the Middle East, the Far East and Africa, including South Africa. In addition, Air Seychelles services the surrounding islands off the main island of Mahé by way of numerous inter-island flights, including a shuttle service to Praslin, the second largest island of the archipelago, on a 20-seat Twin Otter turboprop aircraft. Other connections include inter-island flights to Bird Island, Denis Island, Desroches Island and Alphonse Island. There is a helicopter service between Mahé, Silhouette, Fregate and North Island. In just 15 to 60 minutes of flying time from the principal island of Mahé, several select island getaways offer accommodation in stylish five-star resorts or cocooned within the homely comforts of rustic beachfront lodges. There are also regular inter-island ferries between Mahé and the inner islands.

Natural paradise

Visitors wishing to explore the islands’ walks and trails will discover some of the rarest species of flora and fauna on earth. In addition, Seychelles is home to two UNESCO World Heritage sites, the Vallée de Mai, home to the fabled Coco-de-Mer nut; and Aldabra, the largest raised coral atoll on earth. When it comes to diving, the Seychelles’ waters represent nothing less than a living tropical aquarium where a dizzying array of fish and colourful corals await the diver who dreams of plunging into waters where few have yet ventured and where it’s still possible to swim alongside whale sharks, sea turtles, mantas and dolphins in crystal-clear waters. Snorkelling in the underwater world is equally rewarding and, for the armchair explorer, there’s always a semi-submersible, a glass-bottom boat ride or a fish-feeding excursion into one of the marine parks. The Seychelles is the ideal place to hire a car – or a bicycle – and embark on personal voyages of discovery that will take you from quaint galleries, craft shops and old Creole-style plantation houses to scenic viewpoints, natural wonders and charming out-of-the-way restaurants where you can savour delicious Creole cuisine.

Affordable Seychelles

Recent changes to the economic landscape of the Seychelles have done much to alter the perception of these islands as simply a rich man’s playground and, in turn, reach out to a new demographic of visitors and investors who are now able to enjoy its timeless beauty and great diversity at more affordable prices. With the Seychelles rupee now realigned against major international currencies, tourists and investors are able to benefit from increased purchasing power and enjoy the aspirational nature of the Seychelles in all its beauty and diversity. During the global recession, the Affordable Seychelles Campaign, combined with other government incentives and initiatives aimed at enhancing the attractiveness of the islands as a tourist destination, is opening up the country and all it has to offer. Existing gastronomy, some of the world’s best beaches, crystal-clear waters, exquisite scenery, a varied range of niche, explorative activities – sailing, snorkelling, fishing, diving and island-hopping – are just some of the aspects of the enviable Seychelles lifestyle, which offers experiences most people can only dream of.

My first encounter with Seychelles occurred over 20 years ago when our family holidayed at Baie Lazare. My children were very young and the immensely positive impression Seychelles made on us has endured and prospered over the years. What, I’m often asked, attracted me to Seychelles? Well, I simply fell in love with its natural beauty and the charm of its people and culture.

When, in 2002, the Seychelles government invited proposals for the development of the five-star jewel of its East Coast Reclamation Project, I joined a team and framed a bid for the property. What you see today are the fruits of years of research, including geotechnical, marine, architectural and target markets. Every square metre of Eden Island has been carefully planned, including the shape, waterways, landscaping, roads, pathways, Apartments, Maisons, Villas, and especially the view-lines and the beaches. Each has in place, adhering to the overall design principles we defined with our professional team back in 2005. We have been honest and uncompromising in our determination to deliver our vision.

In the Seychelles context, the project plays an enormous role in supporting economic stability and growth. We work closely with the local community and we have forged excellent working relationships with all tiers of government, the business and financial sectors, the community at large and, of course, the all-important tourism sector.

We work closely with the IMF delegation supporting Seychelles in its transition from a free-market economy where significant positive progress has been made already. We’ve been on numerous state, trade and tourism roadshows to places like London, Paris, Dublin, Johannesburg and Berlin and will later this year be joining delegations to Brussels, London, New York and Delhi, playing a supportive role wherever possible.

In 2009 we contributed 17% of the total foreign direct investment into Seychelles and it is forecast we will contribute around 14% annually over the next few years. Eden Island accounted for 3.8% of the 2009 gross domestic product and we forecast our contribution at around 4% for 2010. Importantly, the project has already provided 512 new permanent jobs, with a further 350 new jobs forecast for this year. We are a significant contributor to the Seychelles economy, yet we respect our position there and guard it preciously, being ever conscious of the broader environmental issues at stake.

We have sold around 300 of a total of 500 units and completed the construction of well over 200. The project is rapidly evolving into a village as we create secure precincts in which people can live and enjoy the facilities away from construction activities.

A few of our owners have resold their homes at capital appreciation levels anywhere between 10% and 20%. And this despite the chaos in the recreational, second-home investment markets worldwide. We have recently launched new sales initiatives into Italy, Czech Republic and India (the well-known cricketer Jonty Rhodes is assisting us break into this potentially lucrative market) and are confident that a further surge in sales will follow.

We are immensely proud of Eden Island. The Creole architecture, incredible landscaping, laid-back island lifestyle and security of person meet or exceed what we promised to deliver. I invite you to come and see for yourself and be part of it … you won’t be disappointed.

Craig Heeger
Executive Project Director and CEO
Eden Island Development Company
LIVE it

The starting point for the design of Eden Island was both ethical and philosophical,’ explains Dennis Moss of the Dennis Moss Partnership, the principal architects of Eden Island, he himself being the urban designer behind the development. ‘Ethical’ he continues, ‘because it was imperative that the atmosphere of historic Seychelles be captured in the overall design of Eden Island and that this new place should resonate with what the people of Seychelles would intuitively recognise as home. A visitor to Mahé and Victoria, the capital of Seychelles, will find that the unique red roofscapes, deep verandas, and the rainbow colours of the exterior details of the buildings are reflections of the historic jewels of Victoria and found across Mahé. These are mostly tucked in amongst tropical green foliage - some forgotten and some perhaps not sufficiently experienced.’

Working closely with CEO Craig Heeger, Dennis and the Eden Island professional teams worked with the dynamics of the island and then carved and create spaces such as basins, beaches and canals in order to create the perfect balance of ‘enclosure’ and ‘exposure’.

As the island rapidly takes shape, one can clearly understand how this artfully considered destination makes the very most of both its constructed spaces and its outlooks, ensuring inhabitants enjoy all the qualities of a magical island lifestyle. Certainly, Eden Island represents a departure from the cookie-cutter villa resort concept and offers a truly unique product: an exclusive private island lifestyle that appeals to the sophisticated buyer looking for excellent investment value.

Ray Alexander, the architect responsible for the design of the Eden Island Villas agrees. He believes the ‘freedom of the Seychelles atmosphere’ and the ability to live comfortably for most of the year in ‘little more than a Speedo’ reflects the ‘openness’ of the architecture and its integrity to the original Seychelles aesthetic. The use of timber for the frames, corrugated iron for the distinctive roofs, and louvered shutters for the windows all combine to create an unparalleled leisure destination and luxury marina lifestyle that’s at one with its environment. Across Eden Island, forms and colours repeat themselves and tell the story of a man-made mid-Indian Ocean island paradise deeply rooted in the vernacular and spirit of Seychelles.

“The objective was, like music and poetry, to create rhythm and rhyme that would be intuitively and positively experienced as one moves through the spaces of Eden Island on foot, by buggy, or by boat.” Dennis Moss, urban designer Eden Island

Control and ownership structures

All properties on Eden Island are sold on individual freehold title. Ownership of the Apartments is governed by the Condominium Property Act of Seychelles, whilst the Villas and Maisons are owned on ordinary freehold title. All owners automatically become members of the Eden Island Village Management Association (VMA). A monthly levy is payable to the VMA for security, maintenance and other expenses related to estate living. Foreign Purchasers require Seychelles government sanction. Eden Island assists prospective owners in complying with this relatively simple process. Units bought from the developers of Eden Island attract no transfer, stamp duty or sanction fees. The only fees payable are the notary/conveyancing fees. Resales, which are subject to a preemptive right in favour of the developer to buy the unit back at market value, attract a 6.5% stamp duty and sanction fee, payable by the second and any future purchasers of the property. A 1% capital maintenance levy is payable by the seller to the VMA on resales.

Expected rental returns

It’s not just the lifestyle benefits, but also the investment rewards that are attracting homebuyers to Eden Island. As the island rapidly takes shape, so investors are seeing similar capital growth and an impressive, almost immediate, monthly return on investment. Apartments and Maisons are available to rent on a daily (short-term) or monthly (long-term) basis. One-, two- and three-bedroom Apartments have short-term expected rental returns of $500, $500 and $600 per day respectively. Long-term expected rental returns on Apartments are $1,100–$2,000, $2,000–$2,500 and $2,500–$3,100 per month respectively. For Maisons, short-term expected rental returns are $650 per day for a three-bedroom house and $650 per day for a four-bedroom one. Long-term expected rental returns are $1,100–$3,100 and $3,100–$4,000 per month respectively. All rentals in Seychelles are subject to a 15% tourist levy payable to the Seychelles Tax Authorities. Structures are in place to assist owners with the payment of these taxes.

Who’s buying?

A mere four hours’ flight from Johannesburg, the Seychelles has become a popular getaway for South Africans, so it’s no wonder they make up a significant 42% of sales at Eden Island. Following the South Africans are the French, who make up 13% of sales, with UK investors and Seychellois nationals both coming in at 9%. UAE and Russian investors jointly make up 6% of sales, followed closely by the Italians, at 5%. Eden Island has certainly become a wonderful kaleidoscope of cultures from around the world.

Attaining residency

Every owner of a unit on Eden Island is entitled to residency of Seychelles. Once you have taken transfer you automatically qualify to apply to the Seychelles government for a Residency Permit. Applications must be made within a period of 90 days from the date of occupation and transfer. Natural Persons who are owners and up to a total of six co-owners and their spouses and issues may apply. In the case of ownership in a legal entity, up to six natural persons who have a beneficial interest in the entity, and their spouses and issues, may apply. Applications for residency are subject to certain terms and conditions and an application fee is payable. Full assistance is provided to owners in making application, should they wish to.

Rapid progress

Possibly nothing has boosted sales at the 539-unit, 56ha Eden Island development quite as much as the aerial and panoramic photographs of the island released regularly to prospective buyers and to the media. The major part of the island reclamation work occurred prior to the end of 2004 and building work was initiated in early 2006. The latest aerial photographs show that significant progress has been made. Eden Island CEO Craig Heeger says that to date, 540 million worth of reclamation, infrastructure and further work has been completed and a further $70 million worth of building work on units has already been certified.

Construction of the Retail Centre has begun!

For more information on the terms of the Condominium Property Act of Seychelles, go to the Commonwealth Legal Information Institute website, click on the ‘Database’ tab at the top of the page, click on ‘Seychelles’ and look for the Condominium Property Act (Chapter 97) commencing on 14th December 2003.

Reserve your place in paradise

Prior to sales documentation being finalised, a simple unit reservation process takes place. This is explained in more detail on Eden Island’s website. The process enables purchasers to reserve units of their choice ahead of signing an agreement of sale. A reservation fee of $5 000 is payable to reserve an apartment, $10 000 to reserve a Maison and $20 000 to reserve a Villa on Eden Island. Shortly thereafter a sales agreement is signed and a 10% initial deposit is payable on signature of the agreement of sale. All payments are made into escrow pending transfer and fulfilment of the terms of sale.
Eden Island has played host to many important events in Seychelles and plays a very active role in upliftment and social responsibility programmes.
